It was Saturday morning, and the Sergeant was holding inspection of a Company of women soldiers (WAC), who oddly enough all had their blouses off. Suddenly the Captain appeared, and seeing what was going on blasted at the Non-com: "My Gawd, sergeant, what are you doing? I said: 'Inspect their kits' . . ." "Oh," replied the sergeant, "I misunderstood you."

"Yes, but what is a talent scout?"

Income Tax officials were at a loss to understand why a man, who claimed he was not married, also claimed an exemption in his income tax return for one dependent child. They wrote to him, calling his attention to the discrepancy and inquired if this wasn't merely a stenographic error.

His reply came back immediately: "You're telling me!"

"Watch out dearie, for that fresh trombone player."

A man recently took a girl to a big store on a Friday afternoon to buy her a fur coat. He insisted on the finest. A $5,000 fox wasn't good enough. Up and up the price went until it stopped at a $20,000 mink. The girl almost swooned over the man's devotion, and naturally grew very loving.

The man then told the salesman, "I'm sure you want to check my credit. As it's too late now, I suggest you do it Monday morning and then I'll pick up the coat."

On Monday morning, the store checked and found the man's credit couldn't be worse. Just then the man walked in. As the salesman started to tell him his credit was worthless, he smiled and said, "Yes, I know. I just dropped in to thank you for a wonderful weekend."

It seems that in Scotland there is an ancient law that requires that any man who gets a woman in trouble must pay twenty shillings ($5) a week for eighteen years after the child is born.

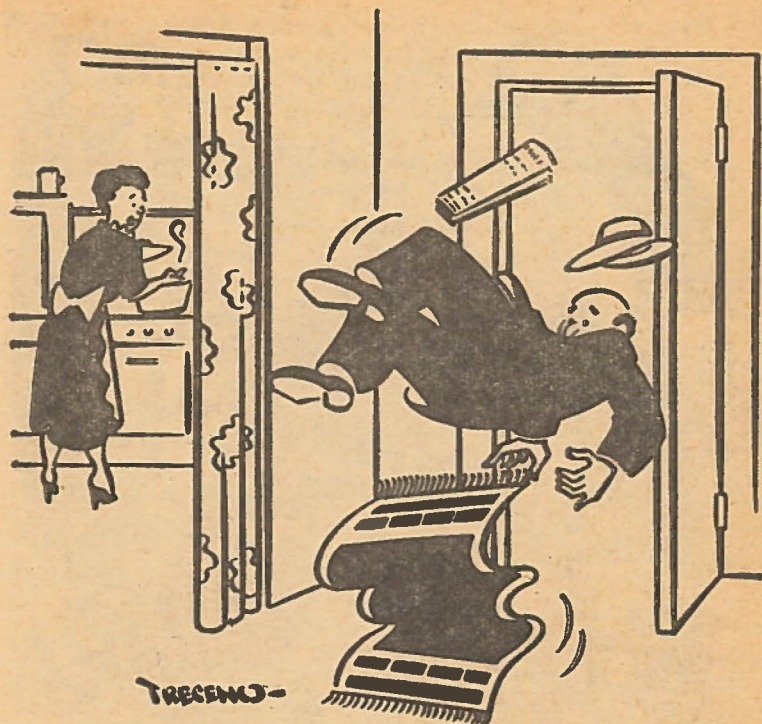

The story is told of a certain Scotchman who had been making these payments regularly and faithfully for many years. During the last few years, the mother had been sending her daughter over each week to collect the 20 shillings.

One day when the girl came in for her regular weekly collection, the Scotchman for the first time had a smile on his face, as he handed her the money. The girl commented on his unusual demeanor and he said:

"Now, when you give this money to your mother this week, I want you to tell her that this is the last payment; and then watch the expression on her face."

When the girl got home, as she handed the money to her mother, she told her what had happened.

"Well, is that so," snapped the mother, "you go right back to that man and tell him I said HE is not your father—and then watch the expression on HIS face!"

"How do you like the new rug I bought, dear?"

Little Tommy's mother was as mad as a wet hen, when he came home one day, covered with mud from head to foot.

"Tommy," she cried in exasperation, "how in the world did you get so dirty; you're positively filthy."

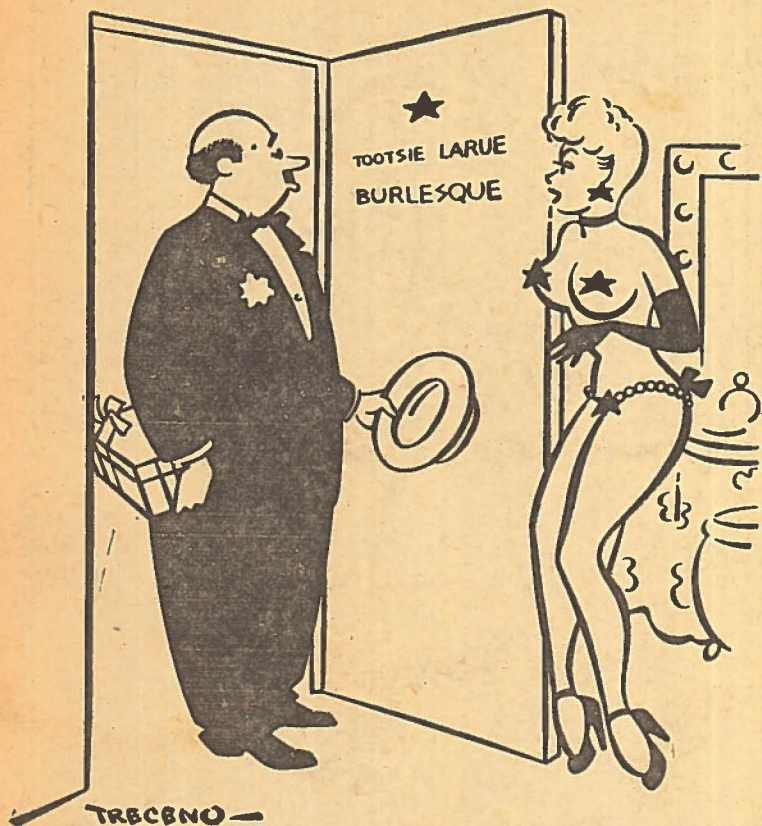

"We were playing animals, mother," explained Tommy; "I was the pig and I had to crawl around in the mud in the duck pond; but you ought to see Johnnie, he had to be a chicken, and he made the awfulest mess when he tried to lay an egg!"

"How about a couple of days off.

little memento of our civil life."

"Just growl right back at him, Mr. Fowler."

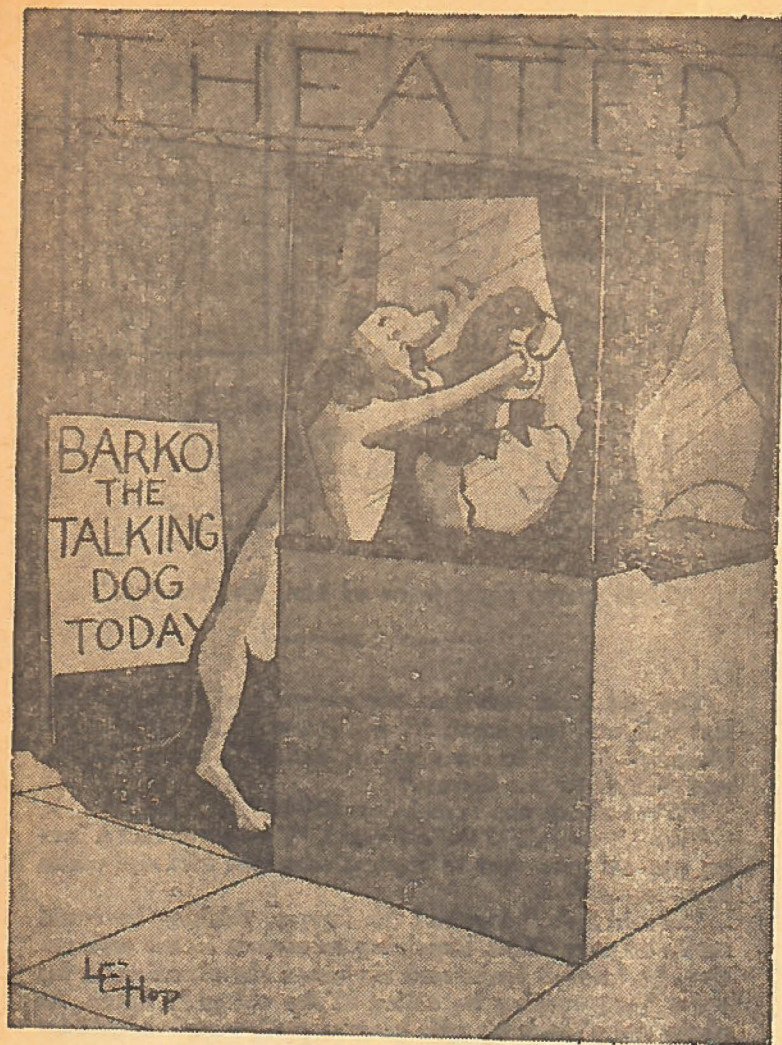

The old maid called in her lawyer and explained her last will and testament. "I will leave $3000 to the Art Museum, $1500 to my nephew, $1000 to the Y.M.C.A., and $1000 to the library."

"What about the remaining $500?" he asked.

"Well," explained the old maid, "I've never had a lover, and I'll give that to anyone who will kiss and make love to me."

"Would I do," inquired the lawyer, thinking he could make an easy $500. Receiving an answer in the affirmative, he hurried home and explained the situation to his wife. That evening he called at the old gal's home. At about ten o'clock his wife became restless and called him on the phone. "Everything is all right, dear," he assured her. "She has cut off the Y.M.C.A. and the library, and if you'll let me stay she'll probably drop the museum!"

"Guess who?"

"He's a rich man on his way to the poorhouse."

"Does your husband snore in his sleep?"

"I can't tell yet—we've only been married a few days!"

He: "Do you serve women at the bar?"

Bartender: "Nope, you have to bring your own."

A movie star gave a housewarming party. The guests were enthusiastic about the fine dinner that had been cooked by their hostess, especially the apple pie.

"It was not only a good pie, but it looked pretty," said one guest. "What I liked especially was the pretty scalloped edge. How did you manage to get such a fine effect?"

"Oh, that was easy," answered the star. "I used the maid's false teeth."

Producer: "There are twenty girls in that show and I've never kissed one of them."

Friend: "Which one is that?"

The wife of a race fan prohibited her husband from backing horses, but he continued to gamble secretly.

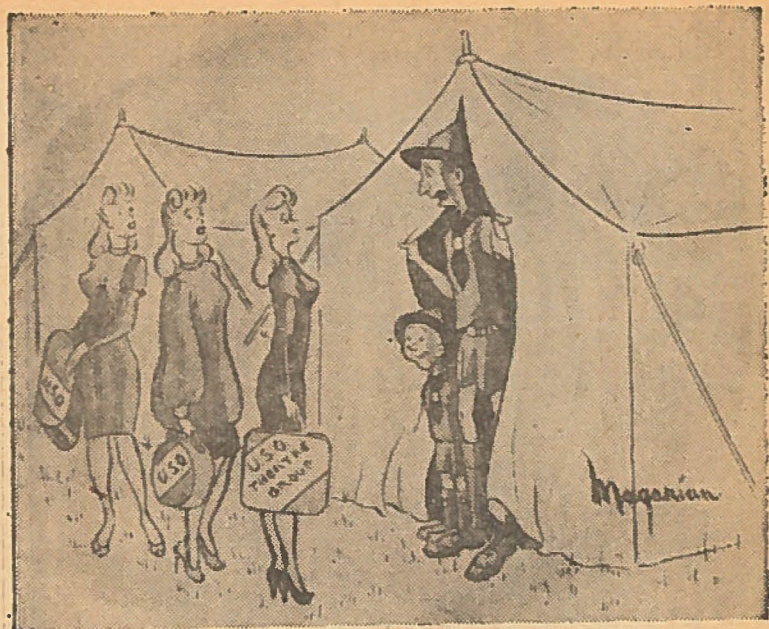

One evening an old friend, unaware of the prohibition, dropped in and said to the fan:

"Well, did you have any luck with Millicent yesterday?"

Instantly the wife shot her husband a dirty look and left the room.

"You've done it now," groaned the husband. "My wife thinks I don't bet now. You'll have to square this with her."

In a few moments when the wife returned, the friend said breezily: "You know, Mrs. Brown, I'm awfully sorry if I misled you just now. Millicent isn't a horse, you know. She's a chorus girl."

"There must be some mistake. We're the Boy Scouts!"

HE TRIED HARD!

He tried me on the sofa,
He tried me on the chair,
He tried me on the window sill,
But he couldn't get it there.
He tried me lying on the couch,
I stood against the wall,
I even sat upon the floor,
It wouldn't work at all.
He tried it this and that way,
And Oh, how I did laugh,
To see how many ways he tried
To get my photograph!

"Let's see . . . was it in Japan,

"What would you rather have," little Johnny was asked, "a new baby brother or a baby sister?"

"If it's all the same to you," replied Johnny, after careful deliberation, "I would rather have a Newfoundland dog."

"How long does it take that dizzy blonde to get undressed?"

I don't.

Nor listen to a dirty joke;

They make it clear I must not wink
At pretty girls, nor even think
About intoxicating drink;

To sow "wild oats" is very wrong;
I don't.

Wild youths chase women, wine and song;

I don't kiss girls, not a single one,
I don't know even how it's done,
You'd think that I wouldn't have much fun;
I don't.

"It's okay, boss. We're both on our lunch hour."

JEEP JOKES

Mother: "I told you if a sailor asked you for a kiss to say 'no'."

Daughter: "But Mother, they don't ask."

The sergeant was in despair. He grabbed a recruit's rifle after a hopeless exhibition of marksmanship. Hastily he took aim, fired and missed the target completely.

"Now that, Robbins, is how you do it."

Taking aim again, he pressed the trigger a second time.

"And that," he exclaimed, trying hard to control his temper, "is how you, Harding, and you, Philips, do it."

Frantically he fired a third time, and managed to score a bull's eye.

"There you are," he shouted in triumph. "That's how I do it. Now, you careless good-for-nothings, remember what I've shown you and in the future do it my way."

Two privates were having a fight in the barrack room. The Second Looney rushed in and stopped the scrap cold with this excited remark:

"Come, come, men! We can't have fighting men in this army!"

"What's the matter with you?" asked an officer of a private who reported sick.

"I've got a pain in my abdomen," said the private.

"Your abdomen!" exclaimed the officer. "You mean your stomach. Don't you know that only second lieutenants have abdomens?"

First Soldier: "I dreamed last night that we were sent to a country where there were lots of pretty girls."

Second Soldier: "Not so bad, not so bad."

First Soldier: "Not so good. I also dreamed that the marines had landed ahead of us."

Sailor's Wife: "George, be sure to get shore leave on Thursday; we're going to have the baby christened."

George: "Listen! Nobody's going to hit that kid over the head with a bottle."

"Look here! Are you commanding officer of this company?"

"No, sir. I'm not."

"Then why do you keep acting like a numbskull?"

Sergeant: "Did you test the oil in that jeep?"

Private: "Yes. It tested awful."

It's all right for a girl to know her onions, as long as she doesn't eat them.

"George, I want some money to go shopping."

The bugologist was drafted and took keen delight on maneuvers in the woods to tell the boys all about the insect life they contacted. One cute little spotted bug lit on Private Culp's hand. He showed it to the ex-prof and asked what kind of a bug it might be.

The bugologist squinted at the tiny insect and said: "Why, that's a ladybug."

"Lady bug!" marveled Private Culp. "Boy, you've really got good eyesight!"

"Haven't you finished your bath yet?"

A Russian soldier arrived home after four years at war. He found his wife with a newborn baby boy, whereupon he began to question her:

"Was it my friend Ivan?"

"No."

"Was it my friend Nicholas?"

"No."

"Maybe my friend Petrov?"

"No."

"Well, then, who was it?"

"Don't you think I have any friends of my own?"

Little Audrey nailed the bathroom door and then she laughed and laughed and laughed, because she knew her father was having a beer party at the house that night.

Kid: "Mother, does God give us 'our daily bread?"

Mother: "Yes, dear."

Kid: "And does Santa Claus bring toys at Christmas?"

Mother: "Yes, dear."

Kid: "And the stork brings babies?"

Mother: "Certainly, dear."

Kid: "Then what's the old man hanging around for?"

"Why didn't you dance last night?"

"I had on a rented Tuxedo."

"Well, what of it?"

"But it was rented where it would show."

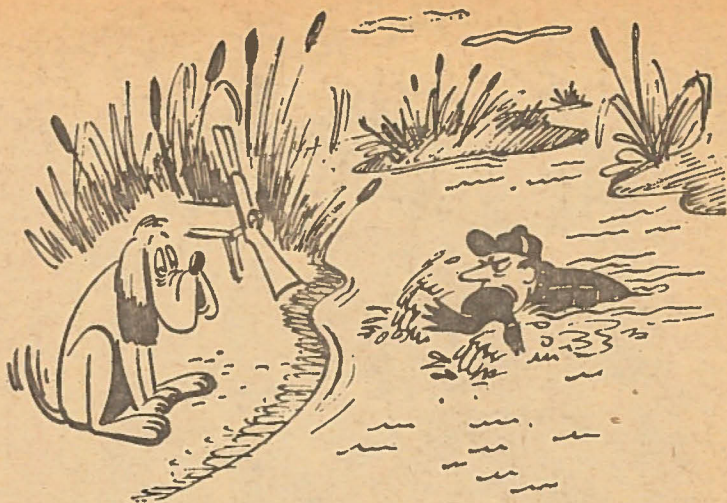

SHE: "AREN'T THE STARS PRETTY, TONIGHT?"

HE: "REALLY, I'M IN NO POSITION TO SAY."

"I never heard of the Bureau of Weights and Measures doing this kind of work before."

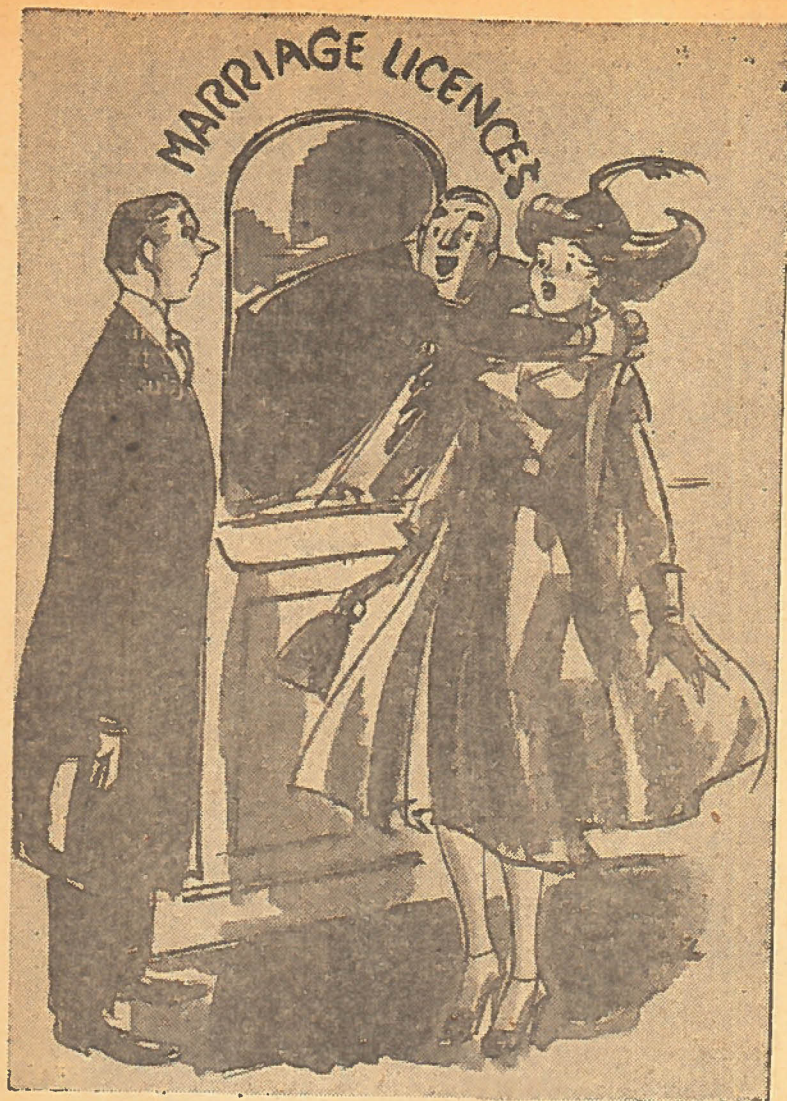

"Lige thith, zee!"

"Do you mind sharing this table?"

"Of course you know it's customary to kiss the bride."

"I don't think it resembles me at all!"

FISH STORY

"Is the fish man here today?"

"How shad I know? Am I my brother's kipper?"

"No, but I've been herring things about you."

"Yeh, that's the halibut!"

"Yes, sir; salmon's been talking about you."

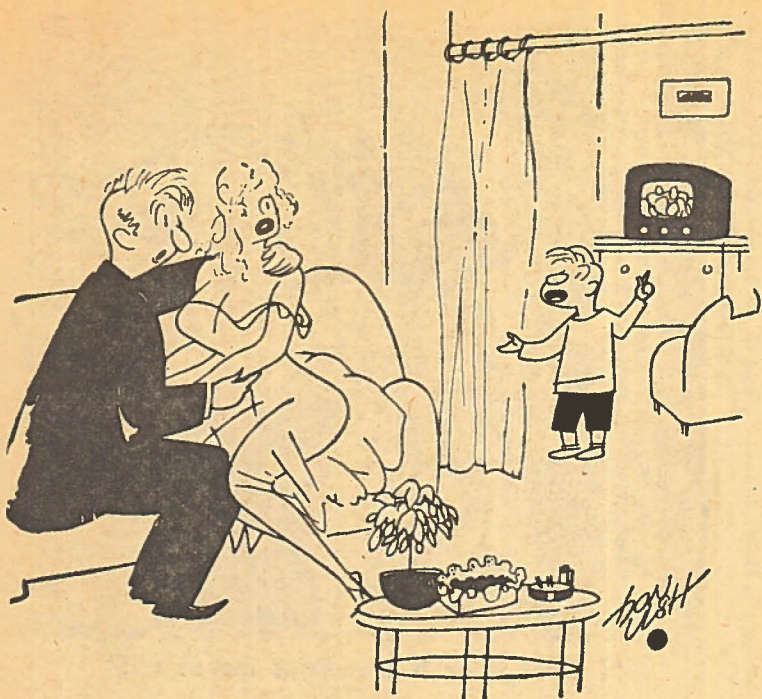

"Did I clam they weren't?"

"Pike cod, I octopus your face in."

"I'll call my father and chase you out of here."

"Trout him out. I'm not afraid."

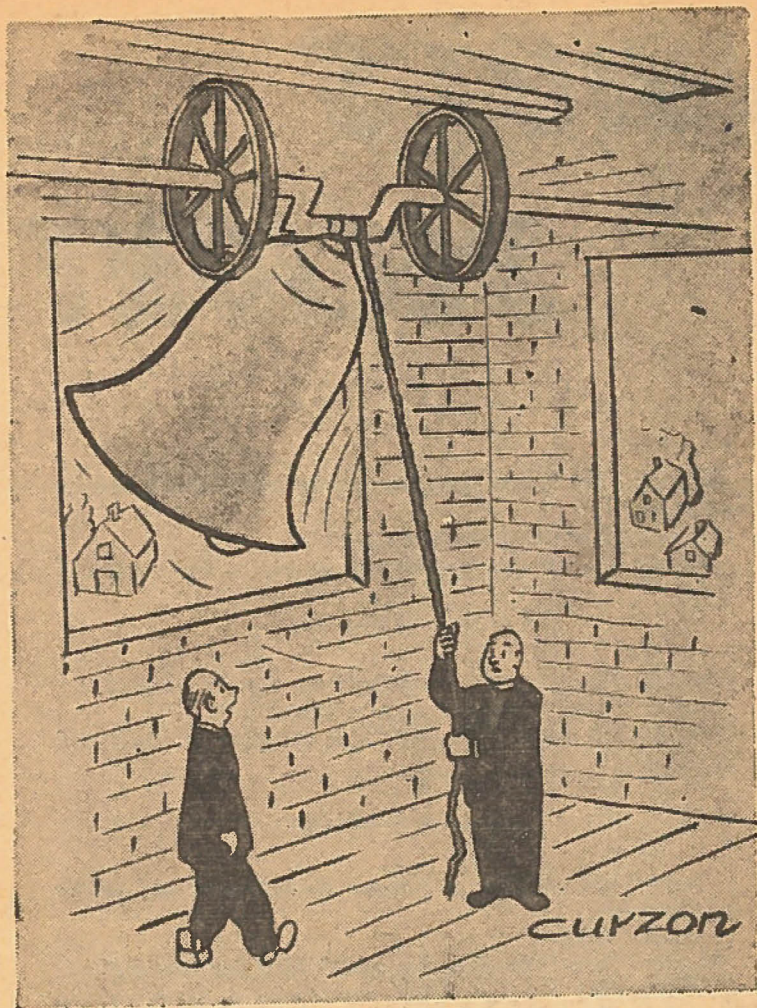

"Whale, I'd better go then."

"Hey, Sis! You're missing a swell wrestling match!"

A certain young lady was being reprimanded for smoking cigarettes. This by a friend of the family's, but a very straight-laced and dignified female of the old school. "Why," she exclaimed, "I just think it's terrible, the way the young girls smoke nowadays; I would rather commit adultery than smoke a cigarette!" To which the streamlined version of modern womanhood replied: "Well, who wouldn't!"

"Did you ring, Sir?"

IDIOT'S DELIGHT

Moron: "My father says he was an awful flirt when he was young."

Goon: "Was he punished for it?"

Moron: "Yeah—he was forced to marry my mother."

Moron: "I stopped two kids from fighting today."

Goon: "Yeah? So you were a peace-maker."

Moron: "I threw rocks at them till they stopped and chased me."

Moron: "My mother has some trouble with my father over money."

Goon: "Why?"

Moron: "On Tuesday she asked him for ten dollars; on Wednesday she asked him for fifteen dollars; and on Thursday she asked him for twenty dollars."

Goon: "Gee, what does she do with all that money?"

Moron: "I don't know. He didn't give her any."

Moron: "Fellows of my type aren't running around loose, you know."

Goon: "Thank goodness—that's what the asylums are for!"

Moron: "Do you know what the mayonnaise said to the cook when she opened the ice box door?"

Goon: "No. What?"

Moron: "Close the door! I'm dressing!"

Moron: "What's the difference between a widow and a window?"

Goon: "I give up."

Moron: "You can see through one but not the other."

Moron: "Did you ever hear of the two Scotchmen who bet a dime to see which could stay under water the longest?"

Goon: "Yeah—and they both drowned."

Moron: "Did you ever hear the story of the big oyster?"

Goon: "No, what is it?"

Moron: "It was so large that it took two men to swallow it."

Moron: "What did you have for lunch today?"

Goon: "Two guesses."

Moron: "No wonder you're so hungry."

The cashier of a small movie house is selling tickets as a pal looks on. A customer buys a quarter seat, lays down a half dollar, and walks away leaving his change.

"Does that often happen?" asks the cashier's friend.

"Very often," replied the ticket seller.

"What do you do in a case like that?"

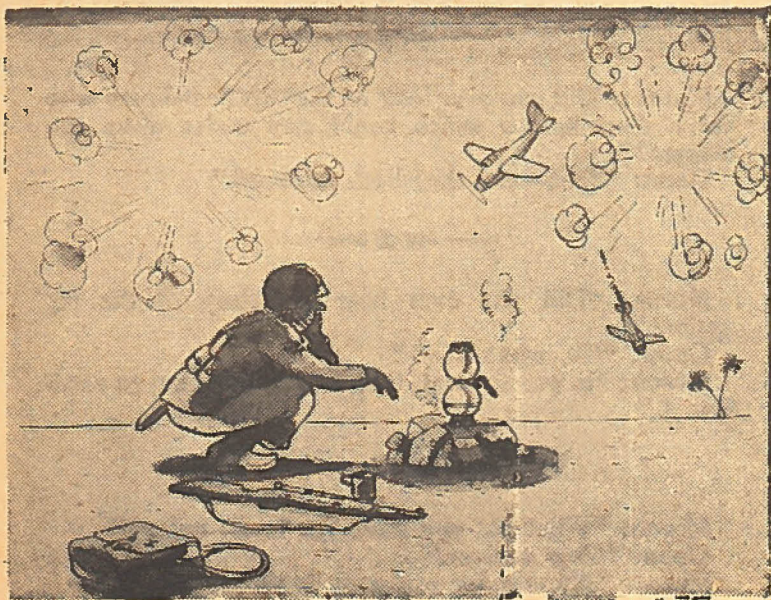

"Oh," says the man in the wicket, "I always rap on the window with a sponge."

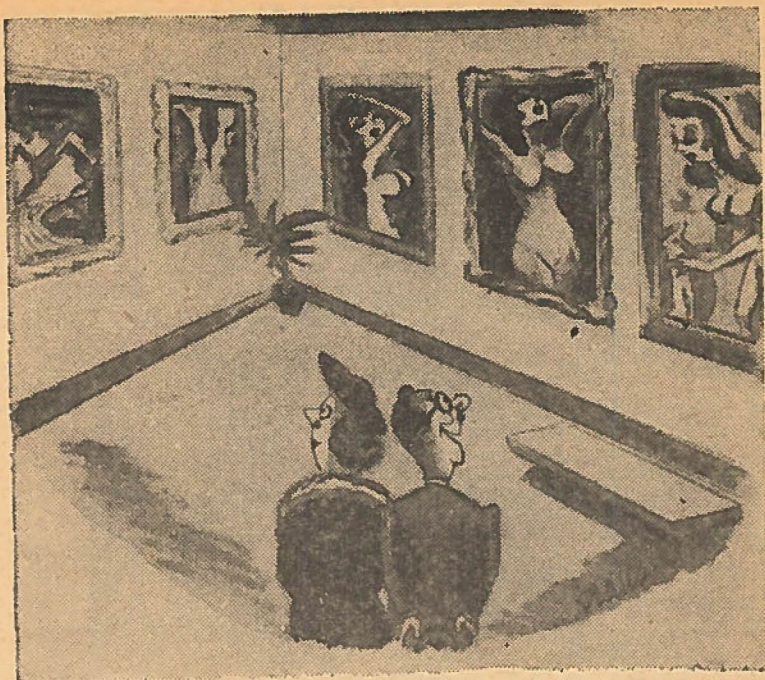

A stranger was being shown through the rooms of the Broadway Chapter of I.O.O.F.

"And this is the lodge room?" he asked.

"Well," said the very ritzy actor, "it is rather lodge, of course, but the one next to it is much lodgah."

"Well, you go your way, and I'll go mine."

The strong man was explaining his act to the theatrical agent.

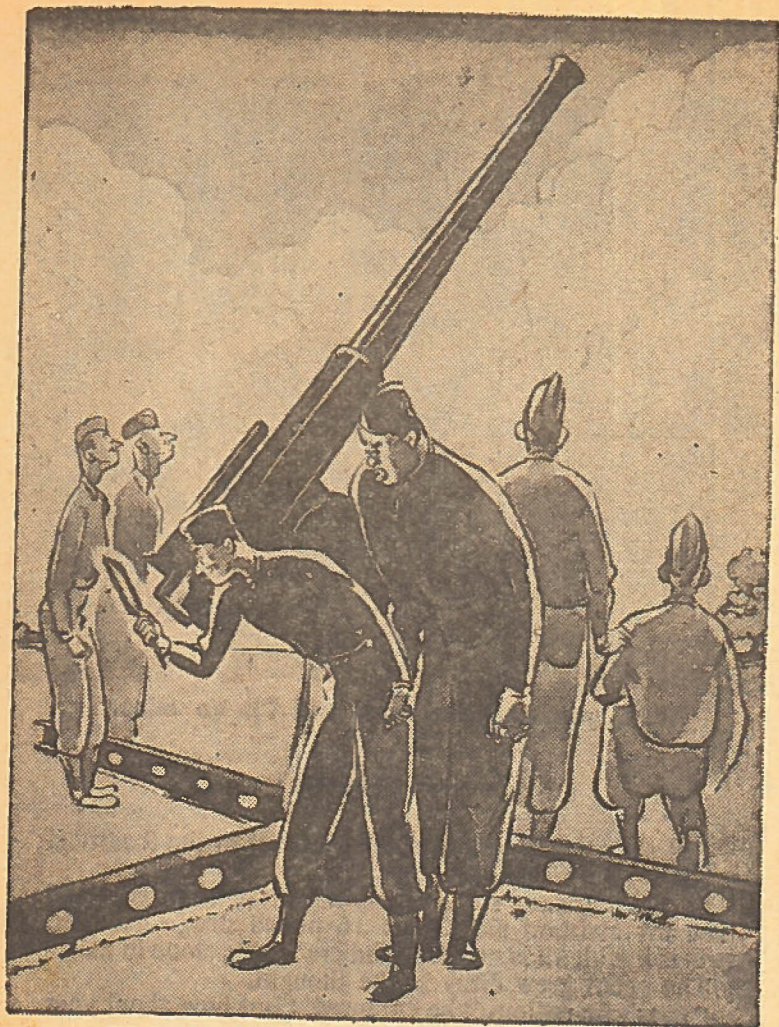

"I place a heavy stone on my head," he asserted, "and then my assistant picks up a 16 pound sledge hammer, swings it with all his might—and cracks the stone in half."

The agent grew dizzy at the thought.

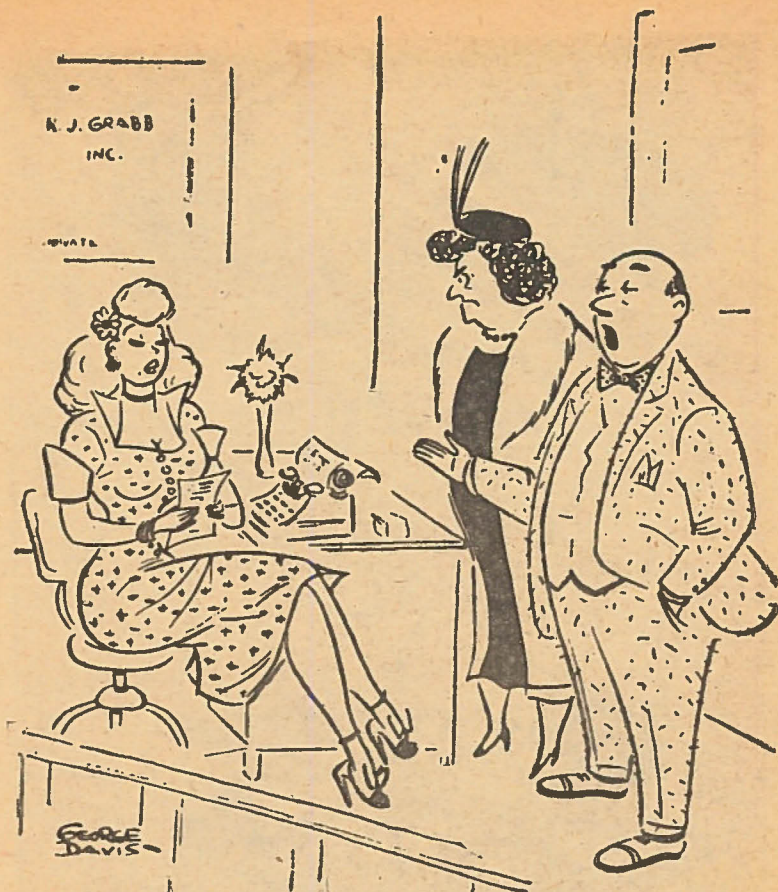

"That's marvelous," he enthused. "But how about your head—don't you ever feel it?"

The strong man waved a hand.

"Yes," he admitted. "That's why I carry aspirin."

It is wonderful how people's tastes change with the years. When they are small, girls love dolls and little boys have a yen for soldiers. When they get older the girls are crazy about soldiers—and boys fall in love with dolls.

"Would you mind coming back later, when we're not quite so busy?"

"Why has the car stopped?"
"We are short of alcohol."
"Does this car run on alcohol?"
"No, but the driver does."

Lil: "Just imagine upsetting that bottle all over the

Pill: "Did it spoil the rug?"

Lil: "Devil the rug—such good liquor."

A group of newly-trained WACs had been sent to one of the most important military camps, and were assigned as Aides to various officers. One, who had been a secretary in civilian life, had a habit of keeping callers waiting with the words, "The General is busy," whether the general was busy or not. One impatient and important-looking gentleman, whom she had kept waiting several hours, finally lost his patience, and barked, "Tell the General that the Governor of the Virgin Islands is here, and will wait just five more minutes! And that's final!"

Upset by his bellicose tone, the WAC rushed into the General's office, and stammered, "There's a gentleman outside who says he is the Virgin of Governor's Island, and he must see you right away."

"For goodness sake," said the General. "I didn't know they had any more over there. Send him in immediately."

"No, we DON'T want to play charades!"

AND GOBS

Girl (in expensive restaurant: "Why do you like the Hawaiian girls better than me?"

Sailor: "Because they would rather dance than eat!"

She: "You're the nicest boy I've ever met."

He: "Tell that to the marines."

She: "I have—to dozens of them."

Soldier: "Darling, I love you more than . . . more than . . ."

Blonde: "More than what, dear?"

Soldier: "More than the girl I had out last night."

A young soldier was hit by a bullet in a battle. Thinking he was mortally wounded, he whispered to a friend: "Write to Mamie. Give her my love, and tell her my last thoughts were of her. Carbon copies to Sadie, Peggy and Kathleen."

First Soldier: "Are you really ill?"

Second Soldier: "Say, I'm so full of pills the doctors can't operate—I keep rolling off the table!"

First Soldier: "I'd been in the hospital only a week when complications set in."

Second Soldier: "For heaven's sake! What happened?"

First Soldier: "The day nurse caught me kissing the night nurse."

First Sailor: "I know a place where the women don't wear hardly anything except maybe a string of pearls once in a while."

Second Sailor: "My Gosh! Where?"

First Sailor: "Around their necks."

A mother, visiting her son who had been in the army only one week, found him in the guardhouse. Surprised, she asked for an explanation, and her son said that he was "in jail" because he had gone to church. His further remarks told this story:

"When I was inducted, they gave me No. 238. Down at the railroad station the sergeant said: 'No. 238, load the baggage.' and so I loaded baggage for 100 draftees. When the train reached camp, the sergeant roared. 'No. 238, unload the baggage.' So I did.

"The next morning after breakfast, the sergeant lined our company up for inspection and said, 'No. 238, fall out and clean the barracks.' After I had cleaned the barracks the sergeant said, 'Now, No. 238, report for K.P.'

"Next day was Sunday, so I went to church with a good many of the other boys. We had just been seated, when the pastor arose with a book in his hand, and said, 'No. 238, are you tired? Are you sad? Are you weary and forlorn?'

"And believe me, Mom, I told him!"

Director: "Now, in the scene the girl will come out dressed in nothing but her hat."

Actor: "But how will that get by the censors?"

Director: "Easily. She'll only be photographed from the neck up."

Director: "Be nice and I'll make you my leading lady."

Girl: "Sorry, I'm married."

Director: "That's all right. I'm married and just as sorry."

'Twas dusk, and night was falling fast. The man was in a hurry to finish mowing his lawn before it grew too dark to see. Suddenly he spied a darker patch over to the right that he thought to be uncut grass. Quickly propelling his mower to the spot, he stumbled and fell down a well. Aha! He couldn't tell his grass from a hole in the ground.

An author, searching for new ideas for the public, went on a tour of inspection through an insane asylum. Approaching a fellow with a paper hat he asked him his name.

"Napoleon," answered the nut, strutting proudly away.

"What's your name, my poor fellow?" he inquired of another specimen who was drinking something hot.

"Ford," replied the inmate. "But I'm not a T model, I like coffee!"

Wandering about, the author came to the attic where a fellow was perched on a rafter.

"And who are you?" asked the writer.

"Tweet, tweet," answered this one: "One beautiful spring evening my father and mother went for a lark and, tweet, tweet! I'm the lark."

"The dress I had on was dirty, too."

Moron: "I know, but I want to get it all cut up before the saw gets dull."

The Hollywood people are very patriotic. Everybody out here is eager to help for the defense of the United States. A young assistant director, who is very effeminate had "his" own ideas about it.

"He" had to go for a physical examination. When he got there, he told the officer in charge, he didn't need military training.

"Do you know how to fire a gun?" The officer asked.

The effeminate young man said: "No."

"Do you know anything about bombs?"

The effeminate young man said: "No."

"Do you know anything about tanks?"

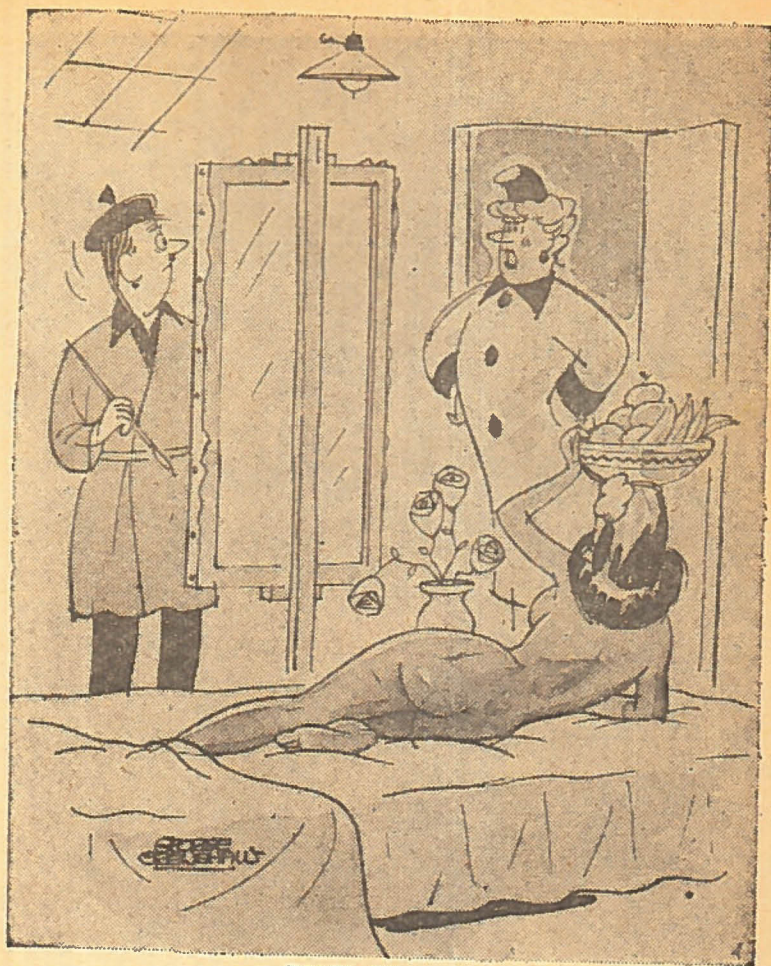

The effeminate young man said: "No."

"Well," said the officer, "you know nothing about bombs, you know nothing about tanks, and you don't know how to fire a gun. If the enemy should invade this country what would you do?" The young "man" put his hand on his hip, and said:

"I'll kill 'em, but I'll kill 'em my own way!"

Do you remember the actor who played the part of Lincoln for so long that he actually thought he was Lincoln? He walked, talked, and dressed like Lincoln all the time. One day he was walking down Broadway clothed in the cape and light hat of Lincoln's period. Someone pointed him out and remarked: "that fellow will never be satisfied until he's assassinated!"

"When I came home last night the wife met me with a new $100 fox fur on her neck."

Goon: "I know a guy who accidentally stuck his penknife in his eye while playing and couldn't see."

Moron: "Oh yeah? What was wrong with his other eye?"

Goon: "So you're reading a book about a farmer? What's the name of it?"

Moron: "Life with fodder."

Moron: "Mom, if you give me a nickel, I'll behave a day."

Morn: "Oh, for goodness sakes, why can't you behave of your own accord?"

Moron: "Yeah, and be a good-for-nothing?"

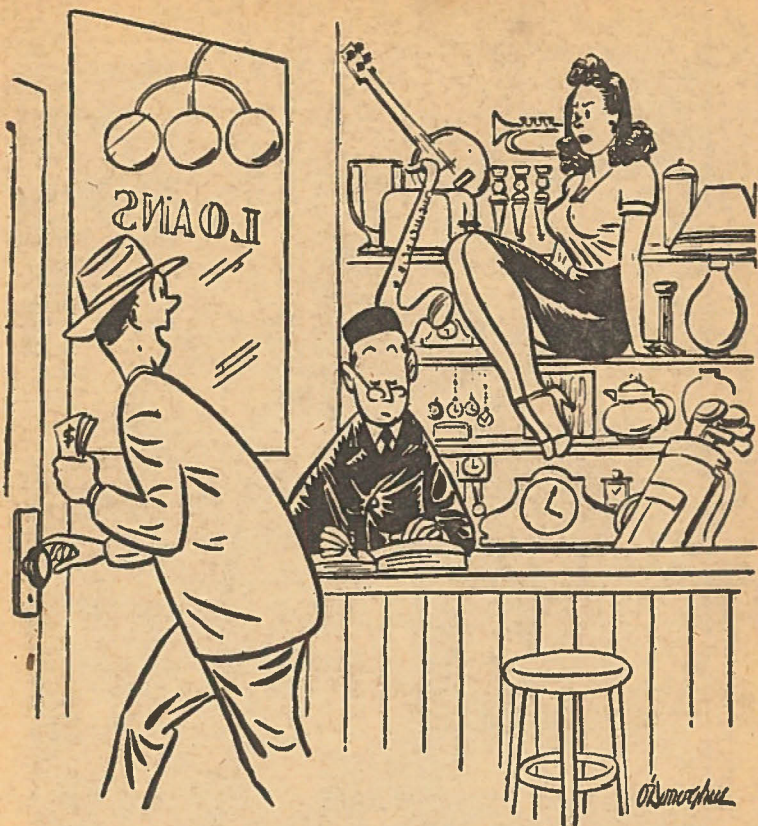

Moron: "I think the golden rule must be very weak."

Goon: "Why?"

Moron: "Because I hear so many people break it every day."
